

To the company;

Working with College Works personnel was an enjoyable experience, as all employees were personable and professional. Extensive time was spent by the prep team reviewing specifically what was to be painted and details were pre-planned as to how best to accomplish that. As only parts of the house and garage were painted, the team did a good job integrating painted parts with the original exterior wall coating. The team did an extensive amount of old paint removal, which for this 1920's house was a key to getting good results.

I like the results of the painting that College Works did, and it was a pleasure working with the team. Even the clean-up was performed well, which is an important way to end the job. Overall, the total effort was of very good value for the price. I would recommend College Works to someone considering painting work done on their home.

Sincerely,
