

July 25, 2009

To Whom It May Concern:

We first met Chris Darbie in March of this year when he was canvassing our neighborhood to see if anyone needed any painting jobs done. He stated that he was representing College Works Painting, and was doing this as a summer job to gain real-world business experience. We have a wood house that we stain every five years, but there are certain high parts of our house that we cannot reach. Chris noticed this, and asked if we would want it to be painted.

He was very professional and thorough in giving his estimate of the work, and once we signed the contract, he followed up with us to let us know an approximate date of when he and his crew would be here to complete the work. He gave us a date of mid to late June, and his crew came to do the job on June 27. We had to leave the house to go out to dinner with friends shortly after they arrived, and when we came home, the job was complete. We were very satisfied with the quality of the work, and would recommend Chris and his crew, along with College Works Painting, to anyone who is interested in having their house painted.

Sincerely,